Many students were pleasantly surprised when they entered Daly's Dining Hall at the start of this semester and were able to smell fresh bread baking in the oven.

Rider's favorite baker, Howard Moss, more commonly known as "Howard the Baker," has recently added a new section to Daly's that provides students with a large variety of different types of breads, muffins, cookies and other tasty treats.

Before working at Daly's, Moss was stationed in the Student Center Snack Bar. Although he has gained a significant amount of recognition since moving his work to Daly's, Moss said that he has been working at Rider for seven years as the only baker.

"I do all the baking and catering in the dining hall, Student Center and Java City," he explained. "Basically, any baking that needs to be done, that's me."

The move was an effort to allow students to get a closer glimpse at what goes on in the kitchen and to provide them with fresh baked bread. For Moss, switching his working atmosphere was made simpler by the fact that he was already friendly with several Daly's employees.

"I make it a point to get to know everybody that I come in contact with. It's been a big change. I didn't make bread [in the Snack Bar]. It's just a different area with a different procedure. I have to do things in a different order to get things done right."

Moss' skillful baking is especially unique because he did not attend culinary school. He said that he was simply born and raised to bake.

"My father was a baker and I was raised going to work, and I was raised going to work with him. In 1981 we bought a bakery. We had that for ten years and then we sold it," he said. "I worked in a couple of bakeries and then here I came."

According to Moss, his brother, Phil Moss, worked as a baker at Rider before he did.

"He was a baker and I was raised going to work with him. In 1981 we bought a bakery. We had that for ten years and then we sold it," he said. "I worked in a couple of bakeries and then here I came."
