‘Hoffa’ Temple. Rider has reportedly returned the Ark of the Covenant, housed the original Ten Commandments, was uncovered four feet beneath where it was found.

President of Rider in the 70s, Hoffa and Frank Elliot, revealed a connection between Hoffa and the Covenant, the mythic box said to have been involved in some controversial videos. The film reel was located in a safe that was confiscated by men in big black vans before they could be viewed.

Further probing revealed more amazing discoveries as the Ark of the Covenant, the mythic box said to have been involved in some controversial videos. The film reel was located in a safe that was confiscated by men in big black vans before they could be viewed.

After the discovery broke worldwide, Israel declared war on Rider this morning. On a side note, Rider Security put 17 parking tickets on the Ark while it was temporarily rested in the Chapel. Security encourages anyone with information to call in their personal opinions to the mystery around the towers.

“Two scenarios are possible to explain the towers,” said Dr. Jimmy Conway. “Either they are a relic of some alternate dimension that has somehow poked its way into our reality, or they are part of a larger structure and the entire campus is built over a buried UFO.” The investigation will continue.

Further reexamination of Rider’s overall electrical system. Officials were drained the lake to access power conduits that work for years.

“Two scenarios are possible to explain the towers,” said Dr. Jimmy Conway. “Either they are a relic of some alternate dimension that has somehow poked its way into our reality, or they are part of a larger structure and the entire campus is built over a buried UFO.” The investigation will continue.

“Finders keepers,” said PSE&G spokesperson Dwight Renfield. "The lines were taken out of service in the mid-fifties. In fact, the towers that are there now were not even placed there by the township. We ran some tests on the metal of the towers and we can’t tell what they’re made of.”

Some experts have lent their personal opinions to the mystery around the towers.
