Features

---

By Madeleine Johnson

Special thanks to the Bart Luedeke Center, located at the top floor of the Bart Luedeke Center Student Center, for housing Wilbur Niewald. It is currently open, and the fine arts department is planning to open a permanent gallery dedicated to Wilbur Niewald.

Niewald’s paintings visit the east coast

Wilbur Niewald is a well-known artist from Kansas City. His paintings are known for their use of color and light, and his use of everyday objects as subjects. Niewald's paintings are currently on display at the Bart Luedeke Center, which is located in Rider University. The paintings are part of a larger exhibit that is celebrating the life and work of Wilbur Niewald. The exhibit is open to the public and is free of charge.

---

By Nicole Southern

Students rejoice in celebration of culture

Halloween has long been a celebration of the spooky and the supernatural. This year, Rider University decided to celebrate with a full month of events leading up to the holiday. The events included a costume contest, a haunted house, and a movie night. The students were able to dress up and have a good time, and the university was able to bring the community together for a fun and festive event.

---

By Chris Hunt, junior

Halo 2 invades residence halls

The war is coming to Rider University. "Quary" (1954) and "Still Life with Onions and Mason Jar" (1993) were painted by Niewald. His work is being exhibited at the Bart Luedeke Center, located at the top floor of the Bart Luedeke Center Student Center. The exhibit is open to the public and is free of charge.

---

By Greenwood

*The war is coming to Rider University. After an extraordinarily long wait, Halo fans finally have something to rejoice about. The second game in the series, simply dubbed Halo 2, hit stores last Tuesday and Rider students were there in droves. Halo, a first-person-shooting video game with strategy elements, became popular among Rider students because of its innovative multiplayer mode.

"Halo, in general, is set a milestone for console gaming," said junior Matt Switlik Hall. "It was one of the first ever gaming experiences that you could have 16 people play at once. You didn't have that of X-Box Live support for online gaming. The war is coming to Rider University."*