Concerns from page 2

A study was conducted in the early 90s on the possible fatal effects of pepper spray. According to the study, a total of 30 incidents were found between August of 1990 and December of 1993 in which the death of a subject occurred following a spraying with OC. These incidents were compiled from news media services, California POST, the American Civil Liberties Union of Southern California and networking among Multi-Cultural Affairs. "Let us not take that to mean it has gone away. AIDS is still a serious problem."

The Multi-Cultural Center sponsored World AIDS Day with assistance from several other groups on campus. First, Alpha Psi Omega performed a skit from the upcoming Laramie Project, followed by a discussion on safer sex by Joseph Sirak, Project Director from the upcoming Laramie Project, followed by a discussion on safer sex by Joseph Sirak, Project Director. Next, a discussion about AIDS, said Don Brown, Director of the Mercer County HIV Consortium. The day is one to remember those who passed, the Cavalla Room for its annual commemoration ceremony. The day is one to remember those who passed, according to Nereida Montijo, a junior political science major who has coordinated World AIDS Day since her freshman year.

"In recent years, there seems to be a lack of public discussion about AIDS," said Don Brown, Director of Multi-Cultural Affairs. "Let us not take that to mean it has gone away. AIDS is still a serious problem."

TheMulti-Cultural Center sponsored World AIDS Day with assistance from several other groups on campus. First, Alpha Psi Omega performed a skit from the upcoming Laramie Project, followed by a discussion on safer sex by Joseph Sirak, Project Director, and discussing safer sex by Joseph Sirak, Project Director. Next, a discussion on safer sex by Joseph Sirak, Project Director. The Rider community was also invited to sign a poster dedicated to World AIDS Day which is currently hanging in the Student Center. Free condoms and AIDS literature were distributed to all who attended the event. The program ended with students making candy bags for children at the Hyacinth Foundation’s holiday celebration. Candy was donated by Panhell and Inter-Fraternity Council.

"I was extremely pleased with the student reaction of the speaker," said Montijo. "I was also impressed by the enthusiasm of the volunteers and the attendance of the students to view and learn more about some of the victims of AIDS. The Rider community was also invited to sign a poster dedicated to World AIDS Day which is currently hanging in the Student Center. Free condoms and AIDS literature were distributed to all who attended the event. The program ended with students making candy bags for children at the Hyacinth Foundation’s holiday celebration. Candy was donated by Panhell and Inter-Fraternity Council.

"I was extremely pleased with the student reaction of the speaker," said Montijo. "I was also impressed by the enthusiasm of the volunteers and the attendance of the students to view and learn more about some of the victims of AIDS. The Rider community was also invited to sign a poster dedicated to World AIDS Day which is currently hanging in the Student Center. Free condoms and AIDS literature were distributed to all who attended the event. The program ended with students making candy bags for children at the Hyacinth Foundation’s holiday celebration. Candy was donated by Panhell and Inter-Fraternity Council.

"I was extremely pleased with the student reaction of the speaker," said Montijo. "I was also impressed by the enthusiasm of the volunteers and the attendance of the students to view and learn more about some of the victims of AIDS. The Rider community was also invited to sign a poster dedicated to World AIDS Day which is currently hanging in the Student Center. Free condoms and AIDS literature were distributed to all who attended the event. The program ended with students making candy bags for children at the Hyacinth Foundation’s holiday celebration. Candy was donated by Panhell and Inter-Fraternity Council.

"I was extremely pleased with the student reaction of the speaker," said Montijo. "I was also impressed by the enthusiasm of the volunteers and the attendance of the students to view and learn more about some of the victims of AIDS. The Rider community was also invited to sign a poster dedicated to World AIDS Day which is currently hanging in the Student Center. Free condoms and AIDS literature were distributed to all who attended the event. The program ended with students making candy bags for children at the Hyacinth Foundation’s holiday celebration. Candy was donated by Panhell and Inter-Fraternity Council.

"I was extremely pleased with the student reaction of the speaker," said Montijo. "I was also impressed by the enthusiasm of the volunteers and the attendance of the students to view and learn more about some of the victims of AIDS. The Rider community was also invited to sign a poster dedicated to World AIDS Day which is currently hanging in the Student Center. Free condoms and AIDS literature were distributed to all who attended the event. The program ended with students making candy bags for children at the Hyacinth Foundation’s holiday celebration. Candy was donated by Panhell and Inter-Fraternity Council.